Russia Asked To Renew Talks On Disarmament

Meeting Calls For Talks Between Reds, Countries of West

PARIS (A)-President Eisenhower and other NATO government chiefs ended their summit conference today with a firm decision to arm Western Europe against Russia's nuclear missile might and an appeal to Moscow to resume disarmament negotiations with the West.

Blame for the decision to base American medium range missiles and stock U.S. nuclear warheads in Europe was put squarely on Russia. A communique said the Soviet Union is giving "the most modern weapons" to its armed forces, and so the West must do

SYNOPSIS: Richard escapes from the Green Ghoul and takes the gold-en thread back to Santa Land. Now, said Santa, he must bring him the black diamond from the third finger of the Phantom of the Sea.

(Chapter 14) THE PHANTOM

Richard was no longer happy. The very thought of the Phantom of the Sea caused his knees to tremble and his heart to pound.

"It wil! take a smart, brave boy to bring back that diamond," taunted Patrick Tweedleknees, "and anyone can plainly see you're dumb and scared. Better go back where you came from and play with rubber balloons like the baby you are."

He tossed an unfilled balloon at the boy. Richard picked it up and put it in his pocket. He swallowed hard and turned to Santa. "I guess I'll be going," he mumballyhoo that could not be backed up by performance. It was no mere happenstance that ballyhoo was kept to a minimum before the successful demonstration of the Atlas missile on Wednesday.

"I told you so!" shouted Tweedleknees.

The United States had much to gain at home and abroad, especially in the NATO conference, if the Air Force's intercontinental missile could be fired successfully at this time in an atmosphere of routine performance. Such a demonstration would firm up the impression that the United States was buckling down to business methodically and purposemissile designers and builders will have gained something in the long run from the lack of coordination which was blamed for their lag in missile development, relative to the Soviet Union's rate of progress.

Out of their uncoordinated ideas about the operational uses of missiles may come a wider range of ideas about missile design than would have been possible under one hard-and-fast policy of development under a missile czar."

One thinks in this regard about the evolution of automobiles and airplanes in the United States. They evolved according to uncoordinated designs and concepts, using the best ideas that grew out of numerous attempts to bring them to a high level of operational perfection, rejecting the ideas that did not pan out. The over-all result has been the highest degree of efficiency in production and dependability in performance achieved anywhere.

It is not too optimistic to believe that once the production of missiles has gained momentum their U.S. producers will do what they always have done - use the famed ingenuity that has made their know-how the most-copied and most-envied factor in the industrial era that is just now dawning in the

at the NATO conference table in Paris. It was in Florida where an intercontinental missile, launched Atlantic. that Inter- David Lawrence continental missiles of at least 5,000 miles range, capable of traversing the oceans to targets in the Soviet area, will be in full production before long. The secretary of the Air Force, James H. Douglas, says the Interconteinental missile will be in operation "within two years." Considering production difficulties, this is believed to be a date ta; ahead of any other country.

Also, it is announced now by Douglas that, within one year from this date, intermediate missiles will be available for use by our European allies. Such an achievement means a restoration of the position of strength of the Western Allies, who will be able once more to rely on "deterrent

News of these developments in the missile race did more to boost the morale of American allies than all the speeches that President Eisenhower and members of the United States delegation could possibly deliver at Paris to the representatives of the nation's assembled there.

For it is action that counts not just words.

But words out of Moscow recently seem to have enchanted many people in different parts of the world.

THE "SPUTNIK" - in itself not a military accomplishment-gave rise to the belief that Russia was far ahead in the contest to launch intercontinental missiles, though available to prove tuis. Since America's "Vanguard" test, however, had failed the gloom here and abroad was noticeable. It caused pessimism among the Allies at NATO and may have been responsible for a tendency to support plans for more "summit" conferences and more talks with the Russians

The cold truth, however, has prevailed. The NATO Conference at Paris has disregarded the Soviet plea for more "sammit" conferences. For these are designed primarily as vehicles for the Communist propaganda of "peoceful coexistence." Translated into realistic terms, this means concessions by the West and eventual passive acceptance of Soviet imperialism and control over Europe, Asia and

Put 'Christ' In Christmas

To The News: "Let's Put Christ Back Into Christmas!" Those are the recent words of evangelist Billy Graham, Even before this popular evangelist made such a request, observing persons have come to doubt that Christ is in Christmas, Now that more and more religious leaders are requesting that Christ be put into Christmas, it is becoming more in Christmas.

Readers of the Corpus Christi Caller of Dec. 28, 1956, for example, were reminded under the editorial heading 'Too Much' that the Christlike spirit was missing. Said the newspaper: "It is a strange folk-manifestation, the way we celebrate the Nativity. If we Americans don't drink too much, we over-eat, and it is a toss-up which one places the greater strain on the human anatomy.

"It is a time when intemperate drinking and eating exact their toll and moderation in all things flies out the window. The spirit of Christmas as we Americans play it is distinguished chiefly by excesses - too much running hither and yon, too much eating and drinking, too much spending, too much loss of sleep and rest, too much of everything - except the true spirit of Christmas, which somehow gets lost in the shuffle." Last year Dr. Maurice N. Eisendrath, president of the Union of American Hebrew Congregations, said over the NBC radio network, "If I were a Christian minister instead of a Jewish teacher, there is nothing I would lament so much, and bitterly resent, as this wholesale transformation by myriads of Christians, by some Jews, and many none-believers in either Judaism or Christianity - of such a holy day into so heathen a holiday, devoid of its profounder spiritual significance

And so Christmas is being called more heathen than Christian. "If Santa steals the spotlight from Jesus, declared Billy Graham, we make Christmas a pagan feastday rather than a Christian holi-

Can things be changed? Can clersymen put Christ into Christmas?

The big news Tuesday wasn't will give Moscow a chance once more in prove her goed faith, if she really wishes to do so. All the disarmament discussions in the past have ended in failure becaus eof the intransigence and stubbornness of the Russians.

> WHAT THE NATO conference has decided upon is a bold step. It answers the blackmail tactics Khrushchev's recent letters to the governments of the United States and of the other member countries of the NATO Alliance.

> There is no doubt that America's position at NATO is related to its military as well as its economic strength. When it seems to Europeans that the United States is lagging behind and that Soviet Russia is ahead in the development of new weapons, there is a tendency to procrastinate and to postpone any military agreements looking toward the setting up of bases in Europe for intermediate

Thus it has been assumed in some European capitals that the United States needs the help of the Allies there more than the Europeans need the help of the United States

This has been derived from the mistaken theory that, until the intercontinental missile is developed, the United States must rely on forward bases in Europe to retaliate with intermediaterange missiles.

The fact is that all kinds of weapons, including our big fleet of strategic bombers, are necessary for the common defense. Rumors that some European countries might bargain for more economic aid from America before granting permission for the United States to use missile bases abroad do not give credit to the good sense of the military men who constitute the staffs of the NATO countries.

THE MILITARY situation is such that, unless Europe has intermediate-missile bases soon, the Soviets will grow more arrogant in their strategy of penetration and will wring agreements from West Germany and other members of the Alliance, particularly the Scandinavian countries, and this could all add up to a substantial victory for the Communists.

It is, therefore, news of transcendent importance that a schedule of performance on the intercontinental missiles has been disclosed to the world.

America has had some hard luck with her tests. But in the next two years there will be more and more heard about the missiles that the United States has been developing. There seems to be more confidence than ever now that success is ahead.

If America really concentrates on the job, as it has begun to do. it may surprise the world on the missile front. For there are all kinds of missiles in the laboratory development stage. Soon, when more tests are held. we shall perhaps be hearing a paraphrase of an cld slogan: "When bigger and better missiles are built, America will build

Herald By DAVID APPEL and MERLE HUDSON

In the rehearsal studio at the very end of the long corridor, three angel voices faded in the middle of a note, and three small pairs of angel wings fluttered. The cherubs had just heard the Great Voice summoning their singing teacher.

But the choirmaster continued to rap his baton in time to the interrupted melody. "Why have you stopped?" he asked. "Please, PLEASE sing until I give you the signal. You'll never learn to be Heavenly singers if you don't obey the rules." "BUT . . ." piped the first cherub.

". . . THE GREAT VOICE . . ." trilled the second.

"Nonsense," Raphael said. "Why would the Great Voice call me? The Great Voice has NEVER called my name, and I have been here for eons. You cherubs are always thinking of some clever way to get out of choir practice!" And again the choirmaster rapped his baton.

"RAPHAEL!" Now four pairs of angel wings fluttered. Now four voices halted abruptly. This, then, was no cherub prank - they HAD heard the Great Voice, filling the rehearsal studio with sweet tones. "That's my name!" gasped Raphael. "I must leave," he said as he stepped over the stacks of music piled on the floor of the room. "You stay right here," he instructed as he squeezed between the musical instruments cluttering the entrance. "And please," he entreated as he rushed out the door, "please try to be little angels!"

Flying down the long corridor toward the Majestic Portals. Raphael asked himself question after question: "Why am I wanted? Why would a choirmaster be summoned to the Mighty Place? What can have happened?'

At the entrance he hesitated, arranging his robes to hide a few unfortunate inkstains. In his haste he had carried several sheets of music with him. Now holding them behind his back, Raphael shyly crossed into the brilliant light of the Mighty Place.

The room was full. They were all here-the messengers, darting through the air on silver wings; the elders, sitting close in quiet deliberation; the scribes, busy with their writing instruments. Even the archangels Michael and Gabriel were in the room. And all of them, Raphael thought ruefully, seemed to know exactly what was going on, and just what to do-all of them, that is, except him.

And the Great Voice spoke: "Let us open the Book."

Court Hears Arguments On Death Convictions

CINCINNATI (P)-The Ohio Supreme Court left its home base in Columbus Wednesday to hear arguments on two death sentence murder convictions.

Members of the court met here for the first time in history and heard arguments on the convictions of Lemuel (Son) Trotter and Robert (Hambone) Jackson on charges of the holdup slaying of detective Walter Hart in a cafe here Sept. 19, 1955. Both men have been sentenced to die in the elec-

The court heard the arguments here because the members were here to attend a Cincinnati Bar Assn. gathering.

Hart was killed as he sought to frustrate a holdup of the cafe. Jackson was arrested a short time later. Trotter was taken into custody 13 months later in Selma, Ala. A third member of the group is now in the Lima State Hospital for the Criminal Insane.

The court took the two cases under advisement.

Drama Proves to Be Bit To Tough For Actor

HOLLYWOOD A - The drama 'Meet McGraw" proved a pit too rough for actor Frank Lovejoy. He broke his right leg during filming of a fight scene for the TV series. The show's producers said the episode will be completed by using a double for action scenes and closeups of Lovejoy, who plays

Man, 68, Dies Bringing Train Into Columbus

COLUMBUS, Ohio (A) - Frank W. Helber, 68, of Logan, collapsed and died at the throttle of his Chesapeake & Ohio freight engine as he brought it into Coumbus Wednesday. Fireman J. B. Akers

Dr. Robert A. Evans, Franklin County coroner, ruled Helber died of a heart attack.

Recommended Air Raid Shelters Candy Gift

APPROVED AIR RAID SHELTER - Photo-diagram shows exterior appearance of the type of air raid shelter designed by engineers of the Federal Civil Defense Administration recently tested under nuclear blasts. It suffered only superficial damage to the air-intake and exhaust pipes, which were bent nearly horizontal, but still functioned. Earth mound remained intact and there was no damage to the concrete family chamber underneath it.

COZY - AND SAFE - This cutaway view shows the type of air raid shelter recommended by the Federal Civil Defense Administration. The steel-reinforced concrete "cave" is supposed to accommodate five people for two weeks. It is an underground chamber seven feet by nine feet, four inches by six feet, six inches high. CDA recommends 10 square feet of floor space and 65 cubic feet of volume for each inhabitant. Man in center is operating hand-driven blower for ventilating system providing three cubic feet of air per mitute for each person. At right end of chamber (not visible) is air outlet ventilator. Blast protection is afforded by a covering of six feet, eight inches of packed earth or four feet, six inches of concrete.

Questions and Answers Q - Which is the most valuable crown in existence? A - The Imperial State Crown of Great Britain. In the center is the 17-carat Cullinan II diamond. the second largest in the world.

A room filled with stale air is annoying and tiring. Particularly irritating is stale tobacco odor. One way to avoid this is to keep ash trays emptied and clean. A like to do with last year's clothes room will look neater too.
